Microsoft Teams Connect Coming Soon

MODERN OFFICE

What is new?

Microsoft Teams Connect is a new feature enabling users to collaborate with people from other organisations, without changing Teams accounts.

Essentially, Microsoft Teams Connect is federated shared channels between internal and external users from different organisations. This feature allows you to add internal or external individuals to a channel within a team, easily facilitating cross-organisation collaboration.

Create a channel for Seattle Service Tracking team

Channel name

Description (optional)

Channel type
 Shared - People you choose from your org or other orgs have access
 Standard - Everyone on the team has access
 Private - Specific teammates have access
 Shared - People you choose from your org or other orgs have access

The shared channels will sit alongside your other standard channels in Microsoft Teams, making them easy to access.

This will remove the need to switch accounts, saving you time and ensuring you never miss a notification from a shared channel.

What are the benefits?

Users can leverage all the collaboration capabilities such as chat, calls, meetings and co-authoring documents together using Microsoft Teams Connect. Microsoft Teams admin will also still have the ability to control what data the external users have access to.

You can use Microsoft Teams Connect to collaborate with other users such as:

- Customers
- Partners
- Suppliers
- Agencies

Products: Microsoft Teams

Cloud Instance: Worldwide (Standard Multi-Tenant)

Release Phase: General Availability
